GOVERNANCE AND HUMAN SECURITY IN UGANDA: A CASE STUDY OF UGANDA POLICE FORCE PROVIDING SECURITY IN KAMPALA

BY

TUKAHIWRA KOSIA KANKORE
BA (HONS) MAK, DIP ED. ITEK
REG. NO. 2011/HD03/2457U

A DISSERTATION SUBMITTED IN PARTIAL FULFILLMENT OF THE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE AWARD OF THE DEGREE OF MASTER OF ARTS IN PEACE AND CONFLICT STUDIES, COLLEGE OF HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES, SCHOOL OF LIBERAL AND PERFORMING ARTS, DEPARTMENT OF RELIGION AND PEACE STUDIES
MAKERERE UNIVERSITY

NOVEMBER, 2015
DECLARATION

I, Tukahirwa Kosia Kankore, do hereby declare that this is my original work and that it has never been published and/or submitted for any other degree award to any other university or any other institution of higher learning.

________________________________________  __________________________________

Tukahirwa Kosia Kankore                              Date

(Student)
APPROVAL

This dissertation has been submitted for examination with my approval.

Assoc. Prof. Dr. Nkurunziza. R. K. Deusdedit

(Supervisor)
DEDICATION

This work is dedicated to my beloved wife, Mrs. Immaculate Tukahirwa.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Many people have in many ways contributed towards completion of my dissertation. However, only a few are mentioned. My special acknowledgement goes to my supervisor, Assoc. Prof Nkurunziza Deusdedit for his valuable time given throughout all stages of this dissertation. Without his guidance, positive comments and corrections, the completion of this dissertation would not have been possible.

A lot of thanks go to Belgian Development Agency for the financial support rendered to me throughout the entire course. Your financial support really deserves a mention in this dissertation.

I am also grateful to all Lecturers of Makerere University for their initiative guidance and mentoring during the time of lectures. You played a tremendous role in improving my intellectual skills and capacity.

Am so indebted to the Uganda Police Force, civilians and vendors of Central Division Kampala (respondents) and to the staff of Makerere University Main Library for their excellent administrative and academic responsiveness and cooperation showed to me during data collection and writing this dissertation respectively.

Lastly, but not least, all course mates, friends and siblings are greatly recognized. Your prayers were not in vain. May the Almighty God bless you more.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

DECLARATION ................................................................................................................. i
APPROVAL ........................................................................................................................ ii
DEDICATION ....................................................................................................................... iii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENT ...................................................................................................... iv
LIST OF TABLES ................................................................................................................ viii
LIST OF FIGURES ............................................................................................................ ix
LIST OF PLATES ................................................................................................................ x
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS .............................................................................................. xi
ABSTRACT ........................................................................................................................ xii

CHAPTER ONE: GENERAL INTRODUCTION .................................................................. 1
1.1 Introduction .................................................................................................................. 1
1.2 Background to the Study ........................................................................................... 1
1.3 Statement of the Problem ......................................................................................... 4
1.4 Scope of the Study ...................................................................................................... 5
1.5 Purpose of the Study .................................................................................................. 6
1.5.1 Specific objectives of the study ............................................................................. 6
1.6 Research questions .................................................................................................... 6
1.7 Significance of the Study ......................................................................................... 6
1.8 Operational Definition of Key Terms ...................................................................... 7

CHAPTER TWO: LITERATURE REVIEW .................................................................... 9
2.1 Introduction ................................................................................................................ 9
2.2 Theoretical Framework ............................................................................................. 9
2.2.1 The New Public Management school of thought ................................................ 9
2.2.2 The Public choice theory .................................................................................... 11
2.3 Influence of Community Participation on Human Security in Urban Areas .......... 12
2.3.1 Community based crime prevention .................................................................. 15
2.3.2 Proactive policing ................................................................................................. 15
2.3.3 Devolution of command responsibility ............................................................... 15
2.3.4 Public participation in the planning and supervision of Police operations ........ 16
2.4 Influence of Police Accountability on Human Security ........................................ 18
2.5 Influence of Police Responsiveness on Human Security in Urban Areas .................. 24

CHAPTER THREE: RESEARCH METHODOLOGY ...................................................... 27
3.0 Introduction ........................................................................................................... 27
3.1 Research Design .................................................................................................. 27
3.2 Area of Study ....................................................................................................... 28
3.3 Population of Study ............................................................................................. 28
3.4 Sample Size and Sampling Selection .................................................................. 28
3.5 Data Collection Methods and Tools .................................................................. 29
3.5.1 Questionnaire survey ..................................................................................... 29
3.5.2 Interviews ........................................................................................................ 29
3.5.3 Documentary review ...................................................................................... 30
3.6 Validity and Reliability of Research Instruments .............................................. 30
3.7 Research Procedure ............................................................................................ 31
3.8. Data Analysis Techniques and Processing ..................................................... 31
3.9 Ethical Considerations ......................................................................................... 31
3.10 Constraints during the Research and Remedies ............................................... 32

CHAPTER FOUR: PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION OF RESEARCH FINDINGS .......................................................... 34
4.1 Introduction .......................................................................................................... 34
4.2 The Socio-Economic Background of Respondents ........................................... 34
4.2.1 Age of respondents ....................................................................................... 34
4.2.2 Gender of respondents .................................................................................. 35
4.2.3 Marital status of respondents ....................................................................... 36
4.2.4 Education level of respondents ..................................................................... 36
4.2.5 Occupation of Respondents ......................................................................... 37
4.3 Police, Governance and Human Rights ............................................................. 38
4.3.1 Police cooperation with the public vs human rights ..................................... 38
4.3.2 Police accountability and human security ..................................................... 40
4.4 Factors Influencing Community Policing .......................................................... 41
4.4.1 The image of Police ...................................................................................... 41
4.4.2 The media ...................................................................................................... 43
4.4.3 Education ................................................................................................................. 45
4.4.4 Public Perception of the Police .................................................................................. 46
4.4.5 Government support ................................................................................................. 47
4.4.6 The Rank of Liaison Officers .................................................................................... 48
4.5 Patrol and Deployment Strategies ............................................................................... 49
4.5.1 Uganda Police and Violation of Human Rights ......................................................... 50
4.6 Militarization of the Police ........................................................................................ 52
4.7 Political Interference in the Work of Police ................................................................. 53
4.8 The Relationship between Police and Civil Society .................................................... 54
4.9 Police and the Courts of Law ...................................................................................... 56
4.10 Police and Human Security ....................................................................................... 58
4.11 Police response to Protests ....................................................................................... 59
4.12 Police Fire Fighting equipment .................................................................................. 60
4.14 Slums and human security in urban areas .................................................................. 61
4.15 Police involvement in abuse human security of people ............................................. 62

CHAPTER FIVE: CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS ..................................... 65
5.1 Introduction .................................................................................................................. 65
5.2 Conclusion ................................................................................................................... 65
5.2 Recommendations ....................................................................................................... 67
5.2.1. Recommendations to the Government ................................................................ 67
5.2.2. Recommendations to the Police .......................................................................... 69
5.2.3 Recommendations to the Civil Society organisations (CSOs) ............................... 70
5.2.4 Recommendations to the Public ............................................................................ 71
5.3 Suggestions for further research.................................................................................. 71
REFERENCES .................................................................................................................... 73
APPENDICES .................................................................................................................... 79
LIST OF TABLES

Table 4.1: Age of the Respondents ......................................................................................... 34
Table 4.2: Marital status of the respondents ........................................................................ 36
Table 4.3: Respondents’ level of education ........................................................................ 37
Table 4.4: Occupation of the Respondents .......................................................................... 38
Table 4.5: Police cooperation human rights ........................................................................ 39
Table 4.6: Accountability of the Police Force ...................................................................... 41
Table 4.7: Media preventive strategies ................................................................................ 43
Table 4.8: Public Perception of the Police ........................................................................... 47
Table 4.9: Government support ......................................................................................... 48
Table 4.10: Rank of Liaison Officers and Community Policing ...................................... 49
Table 4.11: Uganda Police and violation of human rights ................................................. 51
Table 4.12: Militarization of Police .................................................................................... 52
Table 4.13: Political Interference in the work of Police ..................................................... 53
Table 4.14: The relationship between Police and Civil Society ......................................... 55
Table 4.15: Police investigations take a long time to produce results ............................... 58
Table 4.16: Police responds to protests with a lot of force and teargas ........................... 59
Table 4.17: Police has enough fire fighting equipments ..................................................... 61
Table 4.18: Some Police officers are involved in a abusing the security of people .......... 63
LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 4.1: Gender of respondents ....................................................................................... 35
Figure 4.2: The image of Police in public .............................................................................. 42
Figure 4.3: Education of the population .................................................................................. 46
Figure 4.4: Patrol and deployment strategies ......................................................................... 50
Figure 4.5: Police and the Courts of Law ................................................................................ 57
LIST OF PLATES

Plate 1: Police firefighting equipment. ................................................................. 62

Plate 2: Katanga slum where unplanned buildings were set up close to each other without access roads.......................................................... 62

Plate 3: Security officers beating up rioters........................................................... 62
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Abbreviation</th>
<th>Full Form</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>ACFODE</td>
<td>Action for Development</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AFIS</td>
<td>Automated Fingerprint Identification System</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CID</td>
<td>Criminal Investigations Directorate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DPC</td>
<td>Division Police commander</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DPP</td>
<td>Directorate of Public Prosecutions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ESO</td>
<td>External Security Organization</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FOWODE</td>
<td>Forum for Women Democracy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HURINET</td>
<td>Human Rights Network</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IGG</td>
<td>Inspectorate of Government</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IGP</td>
<td>Inspector General of Police</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ISO</td>
<td>Internal Security Organization</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JLOS</td>
<td>Justice, Law &amp; Order Sector</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KCC</td>
<td>Kampala City Council</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KMPA</td>
<td>Kampala Metropolitan Policing Area</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NCOs</td>
<td>Non commissioned officers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NPM</td>
<td>New Public Management</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>OCS</td>
<td>Officers in charge of stations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PSU</td>
<td>Professional Standards Unit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ROM</td>
<td>Result Oriented Management</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>RRU</td>
<td>Rapid Response Unit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SPSS</td>
<td>Special Package for Social Scientists</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TRSA</td>
<td>Traffic and Road Safety Act</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UBOS</td>
<td>Uganda Bureau of Statistics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UPDF</td>
<td>Uganda Peoples Defense Force</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UPF</td>
<td>Uganda Police Force</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ABSTRACT

The study sought to examine the concept of governance and human security in Uganda focusing on Uganda Police as an institution providing security in Kampala. Uganda in general and Kampala in particular was faced with a wave of spontaneous state inspired insecurities after the overthrow of Obote 1 government by Gen. Amin, in 1971. This nature of violence and human security challenges spread through the 1970s to 1980 when relative peace returned to the city with 2nd Obote government. This peace was enjoyed for a short time as arrests and detention without trial, which was a new dimension of insecurity started during 2nd Obote government. The period between 1986 and 2001 Ugandans experienced yet another period of relative peace with some isolated cases of riots, demonstrations, fire outbreaks and robberies, in the city. This research therefore focused on the period 2002 and 2012, a period that has experienced an increase in governance and human security challenges in Kampala city.

This research was guided by three specific objectives, namely (i) to find out how participation of the communities (community policing) affects human security, ii) to analyze the relationship between Police accountability and human security, and (iii) to examine the relationship between Police responsiveness and human security in Kampala city. A sample of eighty respondents was surveyed. Both primary and secondary data were used. Interviews and Questionnaires were used as main data collection tools and methods for the study. Data was processed by Statistical Package for Social Scientists (SPSS) computer program and results were analysed using content descriptive technique. The findings in summary indicated that the media, education and rank of Police of officers were the main factors affecting community policing. Results further show that the nexus between Police and civil society is not fully cemented with good coats due to poor image portrayed in both sides basing on unlawful and acts of indiscipline as portrayed by Police officers during demonstrations.

The study also noted that militarization of the Police was contrary to Article 211(d) of the Constitution of Uganda which states that the Uganda Police Force is supposed to cooperate with civilian authority and other security organs established under the supreme law of the land. The study concluded that relationship between the Police and the civilian population has to be improved if human security concerns are to be addressed. The militaristic approaches in attempt to provide human security have instead exacerbated gross abuse of human rights and loss of vision on good governance tenets like accountability, participation and responsiveness. Therefore, the study recommended that the Police Force must find ways of improving its image and customer care through aggressive marketing of its programmes in entire communities of Kampala and that there is need to recruit volunteers to help in the community policing drive.